

ROB MARTINEZ — FINAL EXPENSE SCRIPT

Friendly · Honest · A Friend Helping a Friend

INTRO

"Hey [Name], this is Rob with Family First Life — how are you doing today?

I'm reaching out because you had asked about some of the final expense and life insurance programs available. I just wanted to follow up and answer any questions you might have.

I do have your date of birth listed here as _____. Does that look right?

And real quick — the main thing most folks are thinking about when they fill something like this out is just making sure their family doesn't get stuck with a big bill if something happens. Is that kind of where your head was at?"

[A few things about me if they ask:] "I work independently — I'm not tied to any one company. I represent a bunch of the top carriers, so my job is just to find you the best coverage at the best price. That's it."

PHASE 1 — INTRO OBJECTIONS

"I already have funeral coverage." "That's great, glad you have something in place. Can I ask — is it set up to cover just the funeral, or does it leave a little extra behind for your family too?"

If they feel covered: "How long ago did you set that up? Just curious — do you remember how much you're paying monthly and what the coverage amount is?"

If you can beat price: Keep going with the script — don't jump to numbers yet. If you can't beat price: "Were you thinking burial or cremation? Just want to make sure what you have would actually cover everything — costs have gone up a lot."

"You're the tenth person to call me." "I hear you — that's frustrating. I don't blame you for being skeptical. I can tell you we haven't reached out before, but either way, I'll keep it short and let you decide if it's worth a few minutes. Fair enough?"

"Not interested." "Totally fine. Can I ask — did you know what this was about when you picked up? Just want to make sure you have the full picture before you decide. If something happened today, is there something in place for your family to cover the expenses?"

"I don't remember filling anything out." "No worries at all — it takes us a few weeks to get through the files. I have your date of birth as _____. Does that look right? Most people who fill these out just want to make sure their family isn't left scrambling. Do you have anything in place right now?"

"It's not a good time." "I completely understand. I'll make this quick — five minutes max. If after that it doesn't make sense, no hard feelings at all."

DIG IN — BUILD THE PICTURE

"I want to make sure I understand your situation before we look at anything. A couple of quick questions —

If something happened to you today, who would be the one handling things? Who would be your beneficiary?

(Get name, spell it out.)

And is [beneficiary name] in a position to cover funeral costs out of pocket, or is that part of why you were looking into this?

Have you given much thought to burial or cremation?

Do you have a sense of what that runs these days? Cremation is usually around $5,000-$7,000. A burial can be $12,000-$20,000 depending on the service.

Do you have anything set aside — savings, a policy — that would cover that if it happened today?"

(Reflect back what you heard:)

- No coverage: "Got it — so what matters most is making sure [beneficiary] doesn't end up in a tough spot financially."
 - Has some coverage: "Makes sense — sounds like you just want to make sure you have enough."

CLIENT SUITABILITY

"Okay [Name], here's what I want to do. I'm going to spend about a minute on your financial picture just to make sure we're looking at options that are actually affordable for you. These plans were built for people on fixed incomes — Social Security, disability, that kind of thing — so there's usually something that works.

Then I'll spend a couple minutes on health, and that just helps me figure out which of our carriers is going to give you the best approval. Sound good?

Income: Are you currently working, retired, or on disability?

Just ballpark — what do you bring in per month?

After bills and everything's paid, roughly how much are you left with at the end of the month?

(Income objection: "Why do you need to know that?") "Totally fair question. The carriers have guidelines — they don't want to put someone in a plan they can't afford. I just need a rough number. Ballpark is fine."

Smoker / Nonsmoker: "First thing — are you a smoker or nonsmoker?"

(Smoker:) Have you thought about quitting in the next couple years? If so, I've got something that works really well for you — you'd actually get nonsmoker rates right now.

(Nonsmoker:) Perfect, that helps you qualify for better rates.

Banking discount: We do have preferred rates through certain banks we're partnered with. Do you use a bigger bank like Chase or Wells Fargo, or more of a local or online bank?

Great — looks like you qualify for that discount."

HEALTH QUESTIONS

"Alright, just a couple minutes on health. And just so you know — it's not me approving you, it's the carrier. They'll check a report tied to your Social Security number that shows relevant medical history. So I just need honest answers and I'll find the right fit for you. Makes sense?

1. Any heart attacks, heart failure, strokes, TIA, or stents in the last 5 years?
 - If yes: Are you on any blood thinners — Plavix, Warfarin, Eliquis, Nitroglycerin?
2. Any cancer in the last 5 years? What kind? How long have you been cancer-free?
3. Any diabetes? Are you managing it with Metformin or insulin?
4. Any breathing issues or COPD? Do you use any oxygen equipment?
5. Any kidney or liver problems? Any kidney failure or dialysis?
6. Any brain tumor, aneurysm, or history of alcohol or drug treatment?
7. Any Alzheimer's, dementia, HIV or AIDS?
8. Any hospital stays in the last year, 48 hours or more?
9. Any other conditions or prescriptions I haven't asked about?
10. Can you give me a rough height and weight?
11. And last — just so the carrier can verify your identity — can you confirm your Social Security number for me? And do I have your permission to read that back to you?"

(While they answer — pull up Insurance Toolkits quoting tool and start entering their info.)

BENEFITS PRESENTATION

"Okay, grab a pen and paper for me — I want to walk you through what comes with this. Tell me when you're ready.

- 1. Immediate coverage. From the day your first payment goes through, you're covered. No two-year waiting period.
- 2. Locked in. Your premium never goes up and your coverage never goes down. Ever.
- 3. Tax-free. The death benefit, living benefit, and cash value — none of it gets taxed. Uncle Sam doesn't touch it.

4. Living benefit. If a doctor tells you that you have 12-24 months to live, you can access up to 50% of your benefit while you're still here. Tax-free.

5. Double accidental payout. If the cause of death is accidental — a fall, a car accident, choking — your coverage doubles automatically.

6. Permanent. This doesn't expire. It's whole life — it stays with you.

You get all six of those down?"

START THE APPLICATION

"Alright, let's go ahead and put the request in. I'm going to confirm some information I mostly already have — the carrier requires it for their records. Then we'll add your beneficiary, pick an effective date, and put a payment method on file. The whole thing takes a minute or two and then we'll have the decision. Ready?

1. Can you spell out your full legal name for me?
 2. Any middle initial?
 3. Date of birth — I have ____, does that look right?
 4. Is this the best number to have on file?
 5. What's a good email address?
 6. Home address? (If approved, they'll mail the policy packet there — or different address?)
 7. Were you born in [state]?
 8. City?
 9. And you're a US citizen — I already know the answer but I have to ask! (laugh)"

BENEFICIARY

"Alright — and just to confirm, your [relationship] [name] is the beneficiary, spelled ____, correct?

They'll receive 100% of the benefit.

[Name], I don't love asking this — but if we didn't get this in place today, what would that look like for [beneficiary name]?

(If spouse:) How long have you two been married? Any grandkids? (If kids:) Do you get to see them much? Any grandkids?"

BILLING

"Okay, almost done. Last step is getting a payment method on file.

Most people like their policy to start around the same time they get their benefits. What day of the month works best for you? (First or third of the month — or second, third, or fourth Wednesday.)

Is your name on your bank account spelled the same way?

(Google the routing number:) "I've got [bank] pulled up here — the routing number I'm seeing is _____. Can you grab a checkbook to confirm it starts with those digits? And then the account number?"

(Have them repeat it back twice. Confirm checking or savings.)

No checkbook: Do you get statements by mail or email? Do you have the app? (Find the number together.)

Still nothing: No worries — let's just put your debit card on file for now and update it later. Visa or Mastercard?

Banking objections:

"Why do you need my bank info?" "Totally fair. Have you ever written a check to someone? The routing and account number at the bottom of every check is the same thing — it can't be used to make purchases anywhere. All this does is set up your monthly payment. That's it."

"I want something in writing first." "I completely understand. The carrier requires payment info before they submit — it's how they verify the insured and the payor are the same person. Once it's in, you'll get your full policy packet in the mail within 10-12 days."

QUOTE — HIGH TO LOW

"Alright [Name] — based on everything you've told me, the carrier has approved you for up to [amount] in coverage, and that includes your [amount] accidental policy.

This is the most coverage they offer at the lowest monthly cost — and since you've already been approved at today's terms, I want to make sure you're getting the most out of it.

So for $50,000 in coverage, you'd be setting aside about ____ a month. That includes the $100,000 double accidental and all six benefits we went through.

Based on everything we talked about — does that feel manageable for you?"

(Go high to low if needed. Find the number that works.)

LOCK DOWN THE CLOSE

"Okay [Name], everything's submitted. Let me recap —

You're covered for [amount] through [carrier name]. Look out for your policy packet in the mail — usually 10-12 business days.

This number right here is my direct line — same one my family calls me on. Anything comes up with your coverage, I'm your first call. Text or call, doesn't matter.

One more thing — and I want to be really clear about this. Nobody is going to contact you about this coverage. Not the company, not my manager, nobody. If someone calls and says they're reviewing your policy or it's incomplete or needs updating — that's a telemarketer trying to take advantage. Just call me and we'll handle it.

You deserve to have this in place for your family and I don't want anyone messing with that."

REFERRALS

"Last thing — and this one's actually important. A lot of people have life insurance and their family has no idea. If something happens, nobody files the claim and the benefit never gets paid out. So I want to put down an emergency contact for your file. Who would you want listed?

And separately — I'm only allowed to take up to three referrals per client. Is there anyone you know — a neighbor, sibling, close friend — who might want to look at something like this? I'd reach out the same way I did with you — low pressure, just to see if it makes sense."
